FINDING A HEADLESS BODY. Contents of a Sack Discovered in the Susquehanna. Welkesbarre, Pa., July 5.-Great excitenent has resulted from the finding of a headless body sewed in a eack floating in the Susquehanna River below this city.

Three boys in bathing found the sack and towed it ashore, thinking it contained potatoes. The boys ripped the sack open and were herrified to see a human foot protruding through the aperture. They re tadly frightened and rushed home, telling their parents of the find. Coroner McKee was sent for and a large crowd gathered. The sack was opened and it revealed the partly decomposed and headless body of a man about twenty-five ears old, five fect, seven inches in height, and weighing about 165 pounds. The apman was a miner or laborer in the coal

The body was entirely nude, and the legs were doubled flat upon the stomach, be-ing heed in place by a bed sheet, tightly knotted. Several physicians were called, and the declared the body had been in the water three or four days. There were in-cisions on the front and back of the body, expessing the heart, lungs, and stomach, which were evidently made by a skilled surgeon, like those in cases of illustrations in surgery before a class of students.

Where the body came from is a mystery. Where the body came from is a mystery. There are suspicions that murder has been committed, and several excellent clews are now being ferreted out. Three young men, all tallying with the description of the headless trunk, have disappeared from their homes near here during the last week. Their disappearance was very mysterious, and no clew was left.

Since the body was found a clew has been discovered that may fathom the mystery. A young man paid court to a woman tery.

tery. A young man paid court to a woman in Wilkesbarre, and she had a second suitor, who is a surgeon and physician. The young man disappeared about a week ago, and it was given out that he had gone West, but he left his trunk behind.

The detectives working on the case be-lieve that they have good clews to make an arrest in a very short time, and that it will prove very sensational, owing to the prominence of the man suspected.

GIANT POPLAR TREE DEAD.

Was a Thousand Years old.

Easton, Md., July 5.-The oldest and largest tree in Talbot county is dead. It has been dying for twenty-five years or more. The tree is a mammoth tulip poplar in a field of Poplar Hill farm, near the public road leading from Easton to Trappe, about a mile and a half from Easton. The farm there has been named for the tree for at least clambers and $12 and $10. 1013 N. It stands alone a pleture-sque feature of the landscape, in an open field, and can be seen for miles from all roads and from the water courses. The wonderful size of the tree is in the magnitude and height of its trunk Annexis. nitude and height of its trunk. Approxi-mately it is 250 feet high and twenty feet in diameter. The head is comparatively small, and the first limb is 200 feet from top, at night, for many venturesoms and wanted by young widow, position as houseagile climbers have ascended it, the light to Sharp's Island lighthouse can be plainly in Sharp's Island lighthouse can be plainly in Sharp's Island lighthouse can be plainly seen. A horse and carriage behind it can-not be seen from the nearby public road. The lightning has not spared it. It is seamed and gashed and split by the many bolts which have struck it, and which have also knocked huge limbs from its top.

Tradition says that 200 years ugo, which us far back as tradition claims to have nown the tree—it is named in land deeds @ years ago—it had lightning marks on lie years ago-it had lightning marks on it, and even then showed signs of failure. Three years ago it was struck four times in one summer. This flerce attack un-doubtedly hastened its end. Well, the giant is dead. The old Popiar of Pop'ar Hill probably saw the beginning of the teath century and died just before the beginning of the twentieth. It was the Mount Shasta of the Talbot landscape.
